Coming from an educational background, Louise Brown moved into law with a particular interest in mental capacity matters and representing vulnerable people. Her work in schools and colleges helped her to develop strong people skills and a sense of empathy, which helps her understand the best way to represent clients.

Expertise

Court of Protection

Louise's expertise is in administration of Lasting Powers of Attorney for clients with mental capacity, as well as administration of Deputyships for property and finances, acting for both professional and lay Deputies.

Notable Court of Protection cases

Lasting Powers of Attorney

Managing the smooth transition of an elderly client from their home to a care home and ensuring their best interests are the first consideration. Considering the client's wishes and feelings and working with third parties involved in the client's care. Representing the client on the sale of their property and liaising with all parties concerned including family members when appropriate.

Mental Capacity

Managing the affairs of a client with fluctuating mental capacity, keeping close contact with the client, their care team and family members. Respecting the client's thoughts and wishes whilst maintaining a professional relationship with all parties.
